ENDORSES THE CINCH.

A Sermon on the Folly of Investing Abroad.

The Eureka Sentinel thinks that the cinching that Hobart and Hayward got in the Muleto mine in Mexico will teach these gentlemen not to be in such a rush hereafter in investing abroad. It says:

Hayward and Hobart have held up too many men in mining deals in their time to begin to squeal at this late day. In their "milling proposition" of the ores of the Chollar and Potosi on the Comstock they managed to absorb about everything in sight, including regular assessments from dishwashers and chambermaids. Other crowds and syndicates on the Comstock have also been doing the same thing for years. No outside shareholders is ever permitted to realize even the shadow of a ten cent piece. But aside from these questionable methods of acquiring wealth, there is another very good reason why the Comstock magnates should be overtaken with loss and disaster. Making all their money in this State, not one of them ever spends a dime to develop its dormant resources. The millions taken out in Nevada gravitates to San Francisco or Europe and if any part of it is ever again put back into mines it goes to Mexico or Central America or some other foreign part. And still the very best and most extensive undeveloped mineral region in the world is situated in the Eastern half of the State of Nevada. San Francisco has been built up with the product of Nevada mines. There is hardly a great fortune in that city that was not acquired in this way; and still as strange as it may appear San Francisco is today the poorest market in America for Nevada mines and mining property. With a few very rare exceptions there are no rich men in San Francisco who will devote as much as three minutes of "talk" to the subject of probable investment in a mine in Eastern Nevada. They will hardly give the prospector an opportunity to tell them what he has. It therefore serves them right to get "cinched" when they go abroad with their capital.

Road Repairing.

Shaw is repairing the road to the Hot Springs, having employed D. Circe to superintend the work. After Circe gets through with a road it is like a race-track and in fact better than some race tracks in this state.

It would be a good idea to have D. Circe take hold of the hill near Gen. Clarke.

It is a disgrace to the city and getting worse and worse. Teams are stalled there almost every day and the surface of the street at this point is about as level as the Madock lava beds. A day's work would put it in repair and the city should see that it is done.

GET YOUR SIGHT CORRECTED.

Prof. A. C. Marten, Practical Optician, will be at the Ormsby Hotel, room 40, for one week. He uses the latest improved and best instruments for measuring and correcting the sight. Fitting lenses for astigmatism a specialty. He carries a full line of spectacles and eye glasses, which he furnishes at San Francisco cash counter prices. He measures anybody's sight free of charge. a10,3t

An Available Man.

"Let me see you a moment," said the Governor of Kentucky, spotting a man in the street and drawing him aside.

"Your name is Gribble, I believe?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, Mr. Gribble, I have decided to appoint you State Treasurer."

"Why, Governor, you astonish me. You certainly do not know my record. Don't you know that I was tried some months ago for stealing a horse and that I narrowly escaped the Penitentiary?"

"I know all about that, Mr. Gribble, I know your record."

"Then why do you wish to appoint me?"

"Because no one has called you honest. My dear Gribble, a man's downfall dates from the time Honest Bill, or Honest Dick or Honest anything is trust upon him. The thief deceives no one, Mr. Gribble. It is the man who prides himself upon his honesty that leaves the Treasury of a State as limp as a dishrag, I must appoint you, sir." —Arkansaw Traveler.
